

John Riley

Humorist and Motivational Speaker

Biographical Information

John Riley grew up in the small rural Southeastern Alabama town of Abbeville. He attended Auburn University on a football scholarship as a place kicker. He was drafted in 1970 by the Oakland Raiders. His career with the Raiders was very short, after which Coach Madden invited him to pursue other activities as a career. He was engaged in the business world for a short while and began speaking professionally and full-time in 1976.

Since then, he has spoken at over 11,000 engagements. He has spoken for large companies such as DuPont Chemical, Alabama Power, Pursell Technologies, Stay Green Plant Food Company, Starbucks Coffee, and Georgia Lighting. He has also spoken for Government Organizations, Military Bases, many Civic Clubs, Chamber of Commerce Dinners, University Clubs, Seed Association Banquets, various Churches, and Conference Activities. John's speaking career has taken him throughout America and to 15 other Countries.

We welcome John Riley to AOSCA, and his subject today is "Surviving The World We Live In Today".
